ALLIES' SPEED UPSET GERMAN WAR STRATEGY

Failure of Russia and Italy
a Handicap Upon Entente.

THE TRIBUNE presents herewith a remarkable summary of the war, both of the German unpreparedness for the war and the allied offensive. It deals with the problems which were faced by both sides of belligerents and the means which they took to solve them. It explains how the situation has changed in the last few months.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.
(Special Cable to The Tribune.)
(Overhead: 1917: By The Tribune Company.)
STOCKHOLM, May 19, via London, May 20.—Here is current history from the lips of the men making it. The statements communicated are authentic and their source is the supreme German military command. Every fact given corresponds with and confirms another, the whole making up the most complete picture of the European campaign since the Napoleonic wars.

PLAN MILITARY SUCCESS.
Today it is known to many men, and months ago, it was known by certain German, that at the time the allies decided to try with all the means at their command for a military success over Germany. The important point to emphasize here is that, in this Rome conference, which finally was placed upon military success. All decisions and all movements ultimately centered on that point. Certain of the participants, however, proposed other plans, among which was the proposition of an intensive economic war against Germany by preventing all of the neutral states from assisting Germany through exports.

LOYD GEORGE'S WILL WINS.
But Premier Lloyd George's gigantic will triumphed and the final agreement was for attempting a military decision as a more certain way than even the economic operations of this war have yet contemplated.

RECOGNIZE PLAN IS GOOD.
The German recognized that Lloyd George was right and that his plan was good because, as the allies would not make peace negotiations and the war could not continue indefinitely, the decision must be enforced and reached only on the battlefield.

CHICAGO JEWS RAISE $500,000 FOR WAR RELIEF

Rosenwald Gives $150,000 More at Temple Meeting.

Representative Jews of Chicago met last night at the Sinai Temple to discuss means to aid their suffering brethren in the war countries of Europe and Asia. The contributions exceeded half a million dollars.

Need for Help.
"Six million Jews—half the Jews of the world," he said, "are calling to you for help. Even before the war these 6,000,000 were objects of our solicitude. Even before the war was suffering and persecution, starvation, and pogroms, imagine what the need is now."

Dr. Hirsch's Appeal.
With exuberant references to the Old Testament, Dr. David G. Hirsch referred to the fall of the Roman Empire as "the fall of an ancient empire of an ancient family, sung to the dust by God's laughter."

A Grandson and $150,000.
He surprised the audience by stating that Mr. Schiff's wish had been answered. "There is another Rosenwald in Chicago. My grandson has arrived within the last twenty-four hours," said Mr. Rosenwald. "He is a most precocious young man. The first thing he suggested was a contribution to the fund. Being financially somewhat embarrassed, I lent him $500, which he has turned to the fund."

Edwin P. Meyer leaped to his feet and pledged $10,000. In rapid succession $10,000 contributions were pledged by Mr. and Mrs. Max Adler, Albert H. Loeb, M. Born, A. G. Becker, and Max Epstein. Then there came the storm of contributions, ranging from $5,000 down to $100, which, at midnight, had passed the $500,000 mark.

WANTS BALFOUR
TO VISIT CHICAGO
LONDON, May 20.—The Times in an editorial favoring a visit of the Balfour commission to Chicago says: "It would be unfair to expect a statement of Balfour's views, holding one of the most important posts in the administration, to undertake a campaign of oratory in the United States. It does, however, appear to us eminently desirable that he should expound the cause of the allies in the second city of the republic. His mere presence would do much to show that for us and the allies, war is now, in President Wilson's phrase, 'a grim reality.'"

Daughter of J. P. Morgan to Wed California Man
New York, May 20.—(Special.)—Miss Frances T. Morgan, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Pierpont Morgan, and a granddaughter of the late J. P. Morgan, will marry Paul Geddes Penney of Berkeley, Cal., on Saturday, June 16. Mr. Penney was a student at Harvard of Miss Morgan's brother, Junius Spencer Morgan Jr., who married Miss Louise Converse.

DEMOCRACY WILL PICK THE POTATO BUG

RAID UNCOVERS RICH RUSS GIRLS AS WHITE SLAVES

PETROGRAD, via London, May 20.—The disappearance recently of many young women of aristocratic families resulted in an investigation which uncovered a widespread plot to lure women and girls into "white slavery" after they had been robbed. Details of the plan were obtained by militia-men who raided the headquarters of the band where they found most of the missing women, many of whom were under the influence of drugs.

Naval Station Men to Buy
$1,000,000 Liberty Bonds
Capt. Midgett, because of the dozens of requests he has had from men in training, has arranged a plan whereby $1,000,000 of the Liberty loan will be taken at the naval station. There are now 8,000 men in training, and this will soon be increased to 20,000. If each man takes a $100 bond by making small payments, the $1,000,000 portion of the issue will soon be exhausted. The men will be urged to send their bonds home.

TEACHERS QUIT LABOR BODIES

Unions Agree to Action;
Victory for Loeb
in Outcome.

The Chicago Teachers' federation, one of the chief storm centers in the school system of the city for nearly two decades, severed its connection yesterday with organized labor.

Course Is Defended.
"In view of the city council's action in reappointing Jake Loeb as head of the schools, and because of the Supreme court's action in sustaining the Loeb rule, it is the only thing that can be done," explained John Fitzpatrick, president of the labor federation. "Withdrawal from the union labor movement is the only way that the teachers' organization can remain intact. They have a chance to stay together in that way, and the principles of unionism will remain imbedded in them."

Six Reasons Given.
Six reasons were given by Mr. Fitzpatrick in his report for recommending the withdrawal. They were: 1. Because of the Loeb rule, prohibiting membership by teachers in labor unions. 2. Because the Supreme court of Illinois reversed the opinion of the Superior and Appellate courts of Cook county and ordered the injunction dissolved which had restrained the board of education from enforcing the Loeb rule. 3. Because, while the teachers' federation was testing the validity of this rule in the courts, Loeb dropped from the service thirty-eight efficient teachers who were officers and members of the federation, all of whom were recommended for re-election by the superintendent of schools. 4. Because the city council, by a vote Berlin reports renewed activity near Arras. English attempts to advance repulsed.

Rome reports extension of positions on the Volturne. Massed Austrian attacks smashed. Vienna claims repulse of foe on whole front with sanguinary losses.

U-boats sink three grain laden Swedish ships, released under reciprocal agreement. Press united in expressing indignation over German action.

of 43 to 24, confirmed the reappointment of Loeb.

Because all of the thirty-eight teachers dropped are still out of their positions and the board threatens to drop more teachers.

Next to athletics the chief feature of recreation will be singing. Well known leaders will be appointed to stimulate group singing in each camp.

The men will not look for theatrical entertainment. A number of dramatic associations have already promised to organize touring companies, which will present plays for the soldiers in different parts of the country. Elaborate plans have been made for the use of picture films, and hundreds of vaudeville houses have been offered to the commission.

FIRST MILITIA TO REACH FRONT EARLY IN FALL

Men Called Under Draft
Will Be Abroad in January.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
Washington, D. C., May 20.—[Special.]—Approximately 100,000 American soldiers will take part in the fighting in France before the close of the 1917 operations, if the government is able to carry out its present plans.

SHARPEN HEART IN FALL.
The government contemplates the sending of a regular army to Europe early in September. Gen. Mann, chief of the bureau of military affairs, has advised the general staff that many units of the national guard need only a month or six weeks of preliminary training in this country before being sent to the intensive training camps in France.

Of the 120,000 national guardsmen who have received a fair amount of local training in the handling of arms, it is estimated that from 50,000 to 75,000 will be ready to go forward in the fall. These units showing the best form in the southern training camps will be dispatched first. Two months of intensive training in France is expected to turn out efficient soldiers.

The selective draft units will require a much longer preliminary training, and the present plans call for their dispatch to France beginning in January.

COMPLETE DRAFT PLANS.
All the plans for the registration of the selective draft force are now complete. The blanks are being distributed to the local authorities, and reports from various parts of the country indicate that 50 per cent of the men from 21 to 30 years old will be registered on June 5.

The administration is now turning its attention to the appointment of the local and district exemption boards which will eliminate the men not needed for the army.

SINGING IN ALL CAMPS.
Next to athletics the chief feature of recreation will be singing. Well known leaders will be appointed to stimulate group singing in each camp.

The men will not look for theatrical entertainment. A number of dramatic associations have already promised to organize touring companies, which will present plays for the soldiers in different parts of the country. Elaborate plans have been made for the use of picture films, and hundreds of vaudeville houses have been offered to the commission.

Raymond D. Fiedler of New York, chairman of the commission on training camp activities, said today that the English or Aldershot system will be employed, except that in every case the word cricket will be eliminated and baseball substituted.

BOXING TO BE FEATURE.
Boxing championships will be arranged, also basketball games, track and field events and contests in competitive use of the bayonet.

LATE NEWS BULLETINS

PARIS, May 20.—It is known now that there has been friction between the French and British commands. The relations between Gen. Nivell and Haig were far from pleasant, and when David Lloyd George was in France a month ago the real purpose of his visit was to smooth over these difficulties.

GENEVA, May 20, via Paris, 10:25 p. m. (Switzerland).—The Journal de Geneve says the Swiss authorities are actively engaged in the formation of a commission to go to the United States to clear up misunderstandings regarding Switzerland.

LONDON, May 21, 3:47 a. m.—The morning newspapers today feature the approaching dispatch of Gen. Pershing with a division of American troops to France, giving the news a prominent place in their columns under appreciative headlines. The Daily Telegraph is an editorial says:

San Francisco, Cal., May 20.—Announcement was made tonight by the Chinese Consolidated Benevolent association, familiarly known as the Chinese Six companies, that it had sent a telegram to the Council of National Defense offering to introduce 500,000 Chinese laborers into the United States to replace farm workers that go to war.

PREPARE FOR WAR, U. S. ORDERS FIRST REGIMENT, I. N. G.

Col. Sanborn Seeks 650
Men on Rush Call from Washington.

Instructions to prepare for active service, probably in France, were received by Col. Joseph B. Sanborn, commanding the First Illinois Infantry, from the war department at Washington yesterday. The regiment is the first among the national guard units in Illinois to be called upon for possible service with Gen. Pershing.

A recruiting campaign for 650 men was started as soon as the war department's message was received. The regiment had a waiting list of 350 men, and these were summoned to the armory as fast as they could be reached. The regiment's strength now is 1,845 men, but under the call of the president this number will be increased to 2,000.

Officers expect the regiment to move to the seaboard as soon as the war footing is reached.

Chance for Action.
"Recruiting headquarters are in the armory at Sixteenth street and Michigan avenue," said Maj. Abel Davis. "We will remain open day and night until the additional men we need are received. Every man that wants to go to the front with the first regiment in Illinois to be called upon for active service should present himself bright and early in the morning."

Others Expect Call.
Commanding officers of other regiments in Chicago expect similar instructions from the war department during the week.

Capt. F. R. Schwengel and fifty-five members of the First cavalry, which is to be converted into an artillery regiment, engaged in an all day ride northward from Chicago yesterday.

GERMAN PLOT FOR WORLD RULE NOW LAID BARE

Arms, Diplomacy and Economic Power Devoted to One Purpose.

BULLETIN.
LONDON, May 20.—A Daily Mail dispatch from Bern says Germany's latest peace balloon has been started from Munich, where the Catholic Kirchensetting prints the following:

"We are informed that a huge peace movement under the banner of the holy euclachist is being organized in German clerical circles. Members of the episcopates in the enemy lands also expressed agreement and promised support. We are not allowed to say more now."

FOLLOWED HITSCHACK POLICY.
In the light of German history the plan shows how implicitly the Kaiser has followed out the blood and iron policy-economic methods of Bismarck for development of Prussian power. Considered in view of the present war map, it shows that the major portion of the Kaiser's war program has been accomplished, regardless of what disposition is made of conquered territory in France, Belgium, and Russia.

A full realization of this situation, which will form a sinister background for consideration of whatever remission proposals the imperial chancellor may make, adds a new force to the repeated declarations of allied statesmen that the German peace maneuvers are in reality war moves, and that a premature truce only would give Germany a resting period in which to further Prussianize and prepare for a greater world war the territory to the southeast which she has conquered under the guise of a friendly alliance.

MEANS YEARS OF WAR.
Although officials have refrained from definite public expressions of what the United States might demand as a peace guarantee, these possibilities recall with recurring emphasis President Wilson's declaration that America might feel, until "the world is made safe for democracy."

They bring into relief British Foreign Minister Balfour's warning that hard fighting still must win the war, the conviction of the American army general staff that the country must prepare for at least three years of war, and the fact that predictions of an early peace have been discredited as visionary in virtually every allied capital.

How minutely defined is the German plan, and how accurately it is being carried out have become apparent with the opening up, during the last few weeks, of several new avenues of information. The return of American diplomatic agents from the central empire, the visit of the British and French war ministers, detailed confidential reports of the recent French operations in the Reichstag and in the German press, and the deductions of alert American agents abroad watching the explanation of more than one hit-and-run feature of the German policy.

WARNS RUSSIA COUNTRY IS ON BRINK OF ABYSS

Officials Demand People
Stand Firm Upon
Allies' Cause.

PETROGRAD, via London, May 20.—Prince Lvoff, the Russian premier, and M. Terachenko, the newly appointed foreign minister, made long statements at a press reception today on the recent crisis and the policy of Russia.

Prince Lvoff, after declaring that the nation had been brought to the edge of an abyss, said:

"The government considers that its first duty is to consolidate the fighting strength of the army as well as for safeguarding the conquests of Russia as for driving out the enemy and actively supporting the allies. The government considers that it is its duty to proclaim its desire for the conclusion of a speedy peace, but in speaking of peace without annexations or indemnities the government declares it is not a question of passive defense."

Will Not Desert People.

"Free Russia will not consent to leave under the yoke of German militarism territories which were abandoned owing to the criminal negligence of the old regime. Neither can Russia remain indifferent to the fate of Belgium, Serbia, and Roumania, nor forget its duties toward them. Russia cannot hand down to future generations a dishonored reputation."

"The existing armistice at the front which gave the German chancellor a pretext to formulate his idea of a separate peace, dishonorable to Russia, must cease. The country must speak its imperious word and send its army out to fight."

M. Terachenko emphasized the need of an indivisible union with the allied democracies. He declared that it was a question of the honor of the revolution which was more precious to Russia than ever.

No Peace Party.

"I note with deep satisfaction," continued the minister, "that in our free Russia, despite our divergences of view, there is no party, no single organization such as existed in reactionary Russia, capable of carrying on propaganda in favor of a separate peace. There is one question, however, which still lets loose the passions, namely, the question of the treaty, concluded by the old regime, the immediate publication of which demanded. This, I am convinced, is a mistaken demand."

"The Russian democracy must understand that the publication of these treaties would mean a rupture with the allies and the isolation of Russia, which would be the beginning of a separate peace. But this is just what the entire Russian people repudiates with all their strength."

Must Make New Start.

"There are two great new facts in the war—the Russian revolution and the entry of the great republic of the United States. A new start must be made from these facts, and free Russia must prove that she is fulfilling the engagements she entered upon with the allies for a united struggle and mutual help. The army will understand that it is fighting for all it holds most dear and that defeat will annihilate our new found liberty and new life."

"It is indeed ridiculous to speak at the present time of the armistist's plans of the allies as a real menace to a just peace when Russia, Belgium, France and Serbia are themselves entirely or partially occupied by the enemy."

Rulers Consent to Reform in German Grand Duchies

SCHWEINFURT, Germany, May 19, via Amsterdam to London, May 20.—The grand dukes of Mecklenburg-Schwerin and Mecklenburg-Strelitz, through their respective ministers, announce their consent to the far-reaching revision of the constitutions of both grand duchies. The move is looked upon in the two grand duchies with popular favor because of the continued dissatisfaction over the present antiquated charters.

Austrian War Plant Blows Up.

COPIENHAGEN, via London, May 20.—A dispatch received here from Vienna states that the Austrian war plant at "Feldhausen," which employed 1,000 men, had been destroyed by an explosion. Nine workmen were killed and a number of others seriously injured.

OFFICIAL REPORTS ON ALL WAR FRONTS

FRENCH FRONT.

BRITISH.

LONDON, May 20.—As a result of our early morning attack, our troops established themselves in a further section of the Hindenburg line on a front of more than a mile between Fontaine-Les-Croixelles and Bullecourt.

The enemy made several unsuccessful attempts to shake our hold on his positions, and force fighting continued in this neighborhood throughout the day. Heavy casualties were inflicted on the enemy and a number of prisoners were taken. The fighting continues in our favor.

Hostile raiding parties were driven off yesterday in the neighborhood of Oisy and southwest of Wytschaste. We made a successful raid south of Amersfoort.

AVIATION.

Three German airplanes were brought down yesterday in the air fighting; one landed in our lines. Five other hostile machines were driven down out of control. One German observation balloon was destroyed. Four of our airplanes are missing.

FRENCH.

PARIS, May 20.—On the Chemin-des-Dames the enemy artillery activity was violent from the middle of last night and again increased this morning from east of Hurlballe to the region north of Cerny.

The Germans directed against our positions a drum fire of heavy shells and asphyxiating projectiles, but under the power of our counter preparation the general assault which they were ready to launch was aborted over the greater part of the threatened front. The German troops massed for the attack were not able to seize their trenches.

At various points where they were able to reach our lines spirited fighting took place which ended to our advantage.

The enemy, who suffered heavy losses both by our barrage fire and our counter attacks, gained a footing only in our advanced elements northeast of Cerny on a front of about 200 meters.

To the southeast of the Moulin Laux a small action enabled us to take a few elements of trenches. In the Champagne two enemy surprise attacks in the region to the north of Mamill les Hurles failed.

There was nothing to report on the rest of the front.

BELGIAN.

PARIS, May 20.—On the whole front the artillery was quite active during the day. There was bomb and grenade fighting at the Ferry-Mat's house and near Steenstraet and Het-Sa.

GERMAN.

BERLIN, May 20.—Army group of Crown Prince Rupprecht-Near

SPAIN DEMANDS REPLY TO NOTES

MADRID, via Paris, May 20.—The Spanish government note to Germany concerning the attack by a German submarine on the Spanish steamer Patricia recalls that a number of notes of protest previously addressed to the German government still remain unanswered.

It declares the transaction of all diplomatic business with Germany will be suspended until replies are received to these, according to the newspapers.

It also demands the fulfillment of conditions agreed upon by the German government to prevent unwarranted attacks by submarines on Spanish ships in safety zones and asks for an indemnity for the Patricia.

Berlin Denies Executing American Woman as Spy

BERLIN, May 19.—[Via Amsterdam to London, May 20.]—The report, said to have been circulated in the United States that Mrs. Katrina Cough, an American, had been executed here on a charge of espionage was denied emphatically today in official quarters. The authorities insist that the rumor was circulated for the purpose of creating anti-German feeling.

Blast in a Steel Plant Kills Four

Youngstown, O., May 20.—A mysterious explosion in the power plant of the Republic Iron and Steel company at noon today killed four men and injured eleven others. Five of the latter were seriously hurt, and it is believed one may die.

Armed the fighting activity again has increased. On both sides of Monday, after short artillery preparation, the English attacked during the evening with strong forces. They were completely repulsed.

During the night the artillery activity between Asherville and Quenast was extraordinarily lively.

At daybreak the strongest gunfire was commenced on this line and south of the Scarpe. This was followed by English attacks.

Army group of the German crown prince—While there has been no essential change in the strength of the firing on the line, the violence of the artillery duel has increased in the western Champagne. The position captured by us near Bray on Friday was completely maintained against a strong French attack.

AVIATION.

The enemy yesterday lost eight airplanes as the result of air battles and anti-aircraft fire.

AUSTRIAN.

VIENNA, May 20.—The Italian battle is proceeding. The Italian infantry up to this afternoon was rather inactive, but the artillery activity was more violent, especially in the region between Tolmezzo and Gorizia. On the northern wing of the sector under the effect of our guns the enemy, who was still clinging to the left bank of the Isonzo near Ausa, was compelled to retreat across the stream.

After 2 o'clock this afternoon, near Volto, the hostile infantry again began an extraordinary strong attack. The fierce fighting ended after an hour of hand to hand fighting in a victory for us. Under a counter attack we repulsed the enemy, who suffered the greatest losses, from the heights.

Likewise east of Gorizia and on both sides of the Soana valley an Italian thrust failed.

On the Carso plateau our assaulting troops brought back three officers and thirty men prisoner from hostile detachments.

ROUMANIAN FRONT.

RUSSIAN.

PETROGRAD, May 20.—In the region east of Koverka, in the direction of the Dniestr, the enemy attempted an attack on our trenches. The attacking troops were dispersed by our fire.

BULGARIAN.

SOFIA, May 20.—Two enemy destroyers bombarded Mangalia. They were driven away by our coast artillery and airplanes.

AUSTRIAN.

VIENNA, May 20.—The situation is unchanged.

ITALIAN FRONT.

ITALIAN.

ROME, May 20.—In the area north of Gorizia our troops yesterday extended their positions on Hill 104, on the Volto. Dense masses of the enemy, preceded by a heavy barrage fire, counter attacked in an attempt to stop our progress, but each time was driven back with heavy losses.

On the evening the enemy withdrew his infantry and concentrated a strong artillery fire on the lost positions.

These we firmly maintained. We captured two 4 inch guns, two 8 inch mortars, trench mortars, and machine guns and a large quantity of arms and ammunition.

In the new east of Gorizia our troops broke into the enemy's line and took some prisoners. During the day we captured 254 prisoners, including four officers.

On the Trossius front the enemy attempted a diversion by a heavy bombardment and by local infantry attacks without success.

AVIATION.

An enemy machine was forced down in an air fight above Patre.

MACEDONIAN FRONT.

FRENCH.

PARIS, May 20.—Artillery actions occurred west of the Varadar.

AVIATION.

British aviators bombarded enemy encampments and depots in the region of Drama and near Doiran.

GERMAN.

BERLIN, May 20.—Several enemy attacks against the hill positions of Kravica, east of the River Cerina, were repulsed with heavy losses.

BULGARIAN.

SOFIA, May 19.—[Delayed.]—After the sanguinary defeat and heavy losses which our enemies suffered between May 16 and May 17 in fruitless attacks by day and night, the fighting activity was relatively slighter today. The artillery firing occasionally became intense at various points.

RUSSIAN FRONT.

RUSSIAN.

PETROGRAD, May 20.—In the direction of Mitin, east of Kalnava, enemy detachments which attempted to attack our positions were repulsed by artillery fire. On the other sectors reciprocal firing has taken place.

AVIATION.

After a fierce combat with a German airplane one of our machines fell in the region west of Drinsk. The machine was burned. The pilot, Ensign Lintoff, and the observer, Staff Capt. Stepanokoff, perished.

GERMAN.

BERLIN, May 20.—There were no special events to report.

AUSTRIAN.

VIENNA, May 20.—The situation is unchanged.

TURKISH FRONT.

RUSSIAN.

PETROGRAD, May 20.—A combined force of Turks and Kurds, more than two companies strong, launched an attack upon our advance posts in the region north of Bitlis. The attack was repulsed.

SUPPLEMENTARY.

GERMAN.

BERLIN, May 20.—The British attacks announced this morning south of the Scarpe have been repulsed with heavy losses to the enemy.

Near Lauffaux French local attacks were unsuccessful.

RUSSIA AWAITS ENTENTE VIEWS ON HER ATTITUDE

Hopes Demand of No Land
Seizure Will Be Accepted.

BY MILDRED FARWELL.
[SPECIAL CABLE TO CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

PETROGRAD, May 20.—There is great anxiety here, as to the attitude of the allies in regard to the declaration of the new government that it has joined with the whole nation in repudiating a separate peace with Germany but equally declares its object to be the speediest possible conclusion of a general peace on the basis of no annexations and no indemnities.

The Bourse Gazette, commenting on the recent discussion in the British house of commons, considers that these discussions show that the revision of the allies' aims already has begun. It is considered that the British recognize the Russian revolution as the motive for the revision.

Although it is impossible to say that the Russian formula of peace without annexations or contributions fully delineates the British point of view, it is impossible to say that it will be rejected.

Appeal to the Peasants.

In Krensky began the new regime with a stirring appeal to the peasant deputies.

"Comrades and peasants," he began, "this is a heavy moment. The problem is to save that which the Russian revolution has given us—the land and the freedom to the will of the people."

"Comrades, sailors, soldiers, and officers, I ask you to show that the Russian army is not a mere collection of people waiting to do nothing but a friendly family of free and powerful citizens who will compel the oppressors of freedom to reckon with her moral strength."

"We must leave the country free and strong for the constituent assembly, the sovereign power that will give the peasantry that for which they have been struggling for ages—land."

Will Not Be Betrayed.

"Any member of the democratic entering the government will not betray you. Comrades, soldiers and officers, show what the Russian peasant, clothed in the gray military cloak, can do when he stands in defense of the freedom of the world and in the dignity of the Russian land, which will be given to you by the constitutional assembly."

The first order of the day by the new minister of war announced that no reservations of persons connected with the higher commands will be allowed. Those who have voluntarily left the army or fleet must return at once.

CONTRACTS FOR 36 FREIGHTERS SIGNED BY U. S.

Washington, D. C., May 20.—[Special.]—Contracts for the construction of twenty-six of the new warships to be built for the United States shipping board in their $500,000 ton program and for twelve steel ships already have been signed. It was announced today.

Eight of the steel ships include those of 2,500 tons to be built at Los Angeles. Four additional steel ships of 2,000 tons will be built at Jacksonville, Fla., by the Merrill Stevens company. The twenty-six wooden ships will be of approximately 1,600 tons apiece.

Chairman Demarest of the shipping board today gave out a long statement denying the published accounts of a disagreement between Gen. Goethals, head of the United States shipping corporation, and the members of the shipbuilding board over the matter of constructing such a large tonnage of wooden ships.

"I ask you to show that the Russian army is not a mere collection of people waiting to do nothing but a friendly family of free and powerful citizens who will compel the oppressors of freedom to reckon with her moral strength."

"We must leave the country free and strong for the constituent assembly, the sovereign power that will give the peasantry that for which they have been struggling for ages—land."

Will Not Be Betrayed.

"Any member of the democratic entering the government will not betray you. Comrades, soldiers and officers, show what the Russian peasant, clothed in the gray military cloak, can do when he stands in defense of the freedom of the world and in the dignity of the Russian land, which will be given to you by the constitutional assembly."

WAR STRATEGYFailure of Russia and Italy

conference's decisions in their large outlines and to a certain extent in detail, the German supreme military command took measures accordingly. One was the abandoning of the projected offensives against either Odessa or Petrograd. The second and more momentous measure was the concentrating of all possible strength on the west front.

HINDENBURG ADVISE TAKEN.
The abandonment of the Petrograd or Odessa offensives was made without great reluctance, because the Germans recognized that, although such an offensive, if successful, would have an enormous sentimental value and considerable moral effect, still it would not insure a decision of the war.

Unquestionably, here spoke the far seeing Hindenburg, who, although possessing imagination, set relatively little store in sentimental values. Better than anybody else, he knew that Russia is so vast that, in a military sense, it is impossible to strike a fatal blow at its heart.

He believed, furthermore, that another Russian catastrophe would not weaken the Anglo-French strength, on one hand, while, on the other, it would be inevitable that when the Germans attacked on a great scale in the east they would have to draw upon their forces in the west, thereby playing into their enemies' hands.

Convinced that the real decision must come in the west, the Germans decided to concentrate all their available forces there, to hold, if not to shatter, the supreme offensive which the allies were preparing.

Frontal Attack Fails.
The allies, on their side, realized that a frontal attack alone would be insufficient to shatter the power of resistance of so strong an opponent as the Germans have proved to be. It was necessary, therefore, to attack the Germans both front and rear simultaneously, and it must be remembered in this connection that the allies' project was on no colossal scale that "in the rear" meant not Leon or Belgium, but Russia. To Russia, then, would be assigned the duty of attacking in the rear and to Italy the flank attack. Of Italy's effective cooperation the allies were uncertain.

but they reckoned absolutely on a great Russian offensive.
In the meanwhile the Germans realized that in order to maintain their west front resistance they also must attack in front and rear. But how? The answer was "with submarines." This suddenly developed what the German military authorities now call "the new tactics"—tactics closely co-ordinating the submarine with the land operations.

Hoped for Peace Discussion.
As long as any hope existed of entering peace negotiations or of effective peace intervention by President Wilson or the other neutrals so long was the submarine activity restricted, but after the allies' unfavorable reply to President Wilson's proposal and after the Rome conference's decision became known then the Germans, simultaneously with their preparations to meet the allies' frontal attack on land, decided to let loose the submarines unrestrictedly, to the end that this submarine campaign should have the effect of an attack on the flank and rear while the land forces were delivering a frontal attack.

But as the submarine weapon requires weeks and months to produce practical effects it was necessary to begin to use it immediately, so that when the frontal attack should have begun the submarine would have reached its highest effectiveness.

The late spring somewhat delayed the allies' offensive, thus adding the intricate German plan. Furthermore, Gen. von Hindenburg thought to delay the offensive still longer by a withdrawal from the Somme to new lines which he already had prepared.

Belied on Gaining Time.
By this withdrawal the field marshal hoped to make the allies' enormous preparations temporarily useless and to make their projected offensive on the Somme impossible. Thus would the allies be compelled to prepare another offensive at another point or at two other points on the west front.

For this it was believed that they would require several months, with the consequence that the submarine would be given time to fulfill its part in the campaign. In other words, when the land offensive did come the submarine would have achieved its purpose.

Hence there was no time to lose in launching the unrestricted submarine warfare, and it began on Feb. 1.

Forced Break with U. S.
The first consequence was the break in diplomatic relations with America. It was then that the people throughout the world declared Germany had inexorably blundered and that, if she had waited a few weeks more, President Wilson would have persuaded the allies to discuss rational peace terms.

To me, Mr. Gerard, the American ambassador in Berlin, said precisely that, adding that it was a tragedy that Germany was so precipitate. Concerning such attitudes the Germans say today:

"We also believed it was possible for Mr. Wilson to inaugurate successful negotiations, but we now feel that we, like others, were mistaken. After the allies' answer to Wilson and after the Rome conference decision became known how could we longer believe in the success of such negotiations? Of what use was it that Wilson was willing to make peace when our enemies were unwilling? Whose intentions were we to take seriously? Were we to credit the intentions of Wilson, who offered an impossible peace, or of our enemies, whom we knew to be preparing for our military destruction?"

Hoped Delay Would Win.
Such were the speculations of the Germans. From speculations they proceeded to action. Von Hindenburg withdrew from the Somme, believing that by so doing they had compelled the allies to spend months in preparing a new offensive.

Thus, after three or four months—that is to say, by midsummer of this year—when the new allied offensive should begin the German submarines would have successfully completed their flank and rear attack, with the result that the possibility of feeding the allies would be prevented through the immense loss of ships and the endangering of wheat ships remained.

Err on Time Available.
Such were the German calculations and they seemed correct, for the deadly submarines sunk more and more tonnage. But the Germans had not reckoned on the feverish activity which the allies were to display despite the fearful obstacles which Hindenburg's withdrawal had created on the Somme.

Before Arras the English, under Gen. Haig, and on the Alps and in the Champagne the French, under Gen. Nivelle, attacked almost immediately and long before the Germans expected. They struck by prompt frontal attack, proving the German calculations regarding the land operations incorrect.

It may be asked whether the German submarines had time enough to show whether they could make an effective flank and rear attack. No, they had not, even though they had sunk thousands of tons.

Russia and Italy Fail.
But balancing this German miscalculation regarding the land operations and balancing the consequent curtailment of the period on which it was believed the German submarines would have for their task of preventing the feeding of the offensive was absence, first, of attack in the rear which the allies believed Russia would deliver and, second, of the attack on the flank expected from Italy. Neither came to pass.

It is certain that the Rome conference reckoned on other things from Russia and it is possible that Von Hindenburg, though he had miscalculated regarding the speed with which the allies would move and regarding the chances they would take in the region which he had devastated on the Somme, again saw further than anybody else, for early in April he said:

"Even the blindest optimists among the allies must concede that the Russian situation favors our plan."
Fresh Troops Available.
The truth of this cannot be denied. The Russian army was not in shape for any serious offensive action and, thus far, the revolution has been a blessing to Germany from a military standpoint, because the Germans are enabled not only to maintain more troops in the west, but also to assemble the elite of their troops there.

Daily new and fresh troops come from Russia to the west front. The same trains return east with the troops worn by the fighting in France. In the east these troops rest and are re-equipped. The same holds good of the artillery. A German general at a critical point on the west front said:

"At certain points on this front and on other fronts we, like our enemies, can have museum pieces—he meant relatively antiquated types, of cannon—but here we have the best guns which our foundries can make. Millions of projectiles which it would have been necessary to use to open the way to Petrograd or Odessa we use here to hold back the Anglo-French waves."

Time Friend of Germany.
Although the Germans underestimated the time which the French and English would require to launch their gigantic offensive, they regard it, now that it has been launched, as an improvised desperate offensive which they have been able to stand up against.

Why, they ask, did the French and English make this offensive without taking the proper time for preparation. The Germans answer their own question thus:

"Because, in three or four months, the offensive would have been impossible owing to the cumulative effect of the submarine operations. Briefly the submarines would sink so much tonnage that it would have been impossible to feed the offensive."

The allies had no time to lose, therefore they attacked. Once the allies believed time to be their best friend. Today the Germans believe that time is Germany's best friend.

42 STATES READY TO REGISTER TEN
MILLION JUNE 5

Washington, D. C., May 20.—Preparations to register ten million young men for military service on June 5 are proceeding swiftly throughout the country. Advice reaching the war department show that forty-two states have their machinery already organized, ready to proceed with the work.

The reports mean that the central boards have been established in county and city for each thirty thousand population; that blanks and forms have been distributed and that nation-wide machinery stands ready to take the military census in the shortest time ever allowed for such a huge undertaking—one fourteen hour day.

The plan was evolved by Brig. Gen. Crowder, provost marshal general as well as judge advocate general of the army, and its efficiency rests upon its simplicity.

All doubts as to the wisdom of turning this task over to the states was dispelled by the nature of the government's machinery. A fine spirit of cooperation and desire to join in the national teamwork for which the president asked in his proclamation has been displayed.

Is it worth a week's wait
perfect-fitting clothes?

THE question, "Can I afford a 'made-to-order suit'?" no longer embarrasses Chicago men. This Spring, "price" is no barrier to the best custom tailor service. If you accept an ill-fitting ready-made suit, you cannot place the blame upon a limited clothes allowance.

If you have as much as $25 to spend for a suit of clothes, the only question for you to answer is, "Am I willing to wait a week to get it?" There is no other question.

Royal made-to-measure clothes are built on "rail-road schedule"—in six full working days. The suit you order Monday is ready for you the following Monday. If ordered Saturday, it is ready for you the following Saturday. This system admits of no fluctuations or uncertainties.

We forfeit a dollar a day in cash when a Royal garment is not ready on time.

Ordering a Royal suit, therefore, simply means anticipating your clothes purchase a week earlier—that's all.

So it simmers down to this: Is it worth a week's wait to have your Spring suit made exactly as you want it—in the fabric and fashion of your own choosing—and to your exact body measure?

A prudent buyer can only see one answer to that question. We will let you supply it for yourself.

GERMANS FREE 3 SWEDISH SHIPS, THEN SINK THEM

Nation's Press Indignant
Over Submarine Act—
Hit English, Too.

STOCKHOLM, via London, May 20.—Sweden's Swedish steamers Vesterlund (4,015 tons), Aspen (3,103 tons), and Thors (1,520 tons), laden with grain from England, had been sunk by German submarines were received here late last night and caused much indignation.

The arrival of the steamships, which were released under the recent reciprocal agreement treating this tonnage in the northern gulf, had been eagerly awaited.

The message which told of the sinking of the three ships caused the crew of the Vesterlund and two men aboard the Vesterlund had been lost.

All Sweden Angered.
Newspapers of all shades of opinion were united today in voicing indignation at the torpedoing of the three steamers.

The Stockholm Tidningen captions its article: "The Germans' Dastardly Deed Against Sweden," and characterizes it as a "deliberate and bloody" crime. It adds that a land which is capable of such a deed is capable of anything.

The English Nyheter says: "Our German kinsmen land—as it is fond of calling itself—is drawing heavy drafts on its sympathies which it believes it can draw here and for which our land has been forced to hear so many unkind words from Germany's opponents."

England Also Blamed.
The Stockholm Tidningen says a share of the blame must be vented on England, which delayed the departure of the steamers until after May 1, but that the first and foremost feeling must be against the methods of the German submarine campaign. It adds:

"The sinkings may give further proof of the danger of invading the blockade zone, but it was sympathy for Germany as well as provisions for Sweden that went down with the ships."

The Svenska Dagbladet also accuses England of deliberately delaying the departure of the ships, but continues: "It is just as plain that the Germans are proceeding without the slightest elementary regard for our rights as neutrals."

French Military Men Lost.
PARIS, May 20.—The French passenger steamship Colbert (5,394 tons), carrying a number of French military personnel, was torpedoed and sunk in the Mediterranean April 30 by a German submarine. Fifty-one persons, including the commander of the vessel, lost their lives.

The official statement says: "The steamer Colbert, in the service of the admiralty and having on board a number of military passengers, was torpedoed in the Mediterranean on the morning of April 30 by a submarine."

Some persons were killed, among them Lieutenant Gennellin, who was in command of the ship. "He was a chivalrous officer of the Legion of Honor for his part in the submarine attack on the same day, April 30, a year ago."

Spanish Ship Sunk.
MADRID, via Paris, May 20.—Fishermen who have arrived from Tabarca, on the day of Tunis, report that a submarine recently attacked a fleet of six boats, one of which was sunk. The crew was saved.

THOUGHT LOST: PICKED UP.
New York, May 20.—(Special.)—Twelve members of the crew of the Greek steamer Parthenon, who were supposed to have perished after their vessel was torpedoed off Fastnet on April 19, was picked up four days later by a British steamer. They were rescued missing on May 14 in cable address to the local agent of the Parthenon.

James Edward Taylor

The expeditious manner in which the police operated in hunting for the lost James Edward Taylor, 27 years old, is as follows:

James Edward went for a spin on his velocipede and at 5 o'clock yesterday had not returned to his home, 217 South Robey street.

At 5 o'clock the parents notified the West Lake street police.

At 8:40 o'clock the parents asked the police if something could be done to get action.

At 8:50 Mrs. Taylor called the West Lake station. The sergeant said he had not yet sent out a report of James' loss.

At 9:15 Mrs. Taylor, after calling all stations, found James in the West Thirteenth street station. The fact of his discovery had not been communicated to other stations.

And James had been found at 9 o'clock.

FIND RINTELEN AND 2 OTHERS GUILTY OF PLOT

German Officer, Lamar, and Martin Convicted as Munition Spies.

New York, May 20.—Capt. Frans Rintelen of the German navy, David Lamar and Henry E. Martin were found guilty here tonight by a jury in the federal court on charges of having conspired in 1915 to disrupt the munitions traffic between this country and the entente allies. The jury disagreed as to four other defendants.

While no statement was made by the prosecution, it is understood that Frank Buchanan, H. Robert Fowler, Herman Schultze, and Jacob C. Taylor, upon whose guilt the jury were unable to agree, will not be brought to trial again.

"Of course we are gratified," said John Lord O'Brien, speaking for the prosecution. "The verdict is a complete vindication for the department of justice, and it also carries conviction as to the extent of the German propaganda in this country."

Capt. Rintelen, who was paymaster for Lamar and Martin in the anti-munitions operations of Labor's National Peace council, did not appear disturbed at the verdict.

"It is fair and just," he declared, when asked his opinion.

It was intimated that Rintelen may be sent to a detention camp rather than to a prison because of the assistance he is reported to have given the government.

The penalty for the offense charged, which was violation of the Sherman anti-trust law, is a year in prison or $5,000 fine, or both.

FATE OF POLAND DISCUSSED BY TEUTON CHIEFS

COPENHAGEN, via London, May 20.—The discussions in Vienna between Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, the imperial German chancellor, and Count Cernin, the Austro-Hungarian foreign minister, which were resumed last week at German headquarters and in which Count Cernin, the king of Bavaria, Emperor William, Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, Dr. Alfred Zimmermann, the German foreign minister, and Dr. Karl Helfferich, the German vice chancellor, are taking part, have to do, among other things, with the future of the kingdom of Poland, according to information received from the German representatives in Warsaw to the Polish council of state.

It will be remembered that the Austro-German resort of Nov. 6, calling the kingdom of Poland into life, left the boundaries of the kingdom unsettled and did not name the future regent or king.

FRENCH TORPEDO BOATS ROUT FOE IN SHORT BRUSH

PARIS, May 20.—French torpedo boats had an encounter today with a German flotilla, in which one of the French war vessels suffered some damage, though all returned to port. An official statement issued today reports the incident as follows:

"A patrol of four French torpedo boats about 1 o'clock this morning encountered a flotilla of German destroyers making toward port."

"After a brief engagement the enemy flotilla retired at full speed in the direction of its base. Our four torpedo boats returned. One of them suffered some damage."

WOMEN MUST BUY WAR BONDS, SAYS MRS. FAIRBANK

"A Certificate of Good Citizenship"—Pastors Urge Purchase.

Mrs. Kellie Fairbank yesterday declared the purchase of a Liberty bond by any woman is a certificate of good citizenship.

"For the first time in the history of the United States," she said, "the women of the country have been called upon to assist in financing a great war. A woman's National Liberty Loan Committee has been formed, with headquarters in Washington, and orders for bonds are already being placed through this new channel. Any one who wishes to buy a 'blue Liberty bond' may write to Mrs. William G. McAdoo, treasury department, Washington, D. C.

Individual Responsibility.

"All women of America should acknowledge this individual responsibility. This woman should subscribe generously to this secure and non-taxable investment. Housewives, by strict attention to the expenses of their households, should strive to save a monthly sum to put into government bonds, and wage-earning women who are able to save money should put their surplus into this kind of all investments. The owner of a 'blue Liberty bond' has in her possession a certificate of good citizenship."

Bishop Supports Loan.

Bishop Thomas Nicholson of the Chicago archdiocese of the Methodist Episcopal church commended the purchase of Liberty bonds in speaking in the new $50,000 First Methodist Episcopal church of Chicago, yesterday before his morning sermon. He also wrote to the ministers under his jurisdiction suggesting that it would be a patriotic service if they would commend the bonds to their congregations.

Bishop Charles P. Anderson of the Protestant Episcopal church announced his purpose to speak on Tuesday at the diocesan convention in the Cathedral of St. Peter and Paul on the relation of the church to the war, and in the address to commend the bonds to the consideration of the clergy of the diocese.

Jews Nominate Delegates for Congress in Fall

Thirty-eight delegates to the national Jewish congress to be held in Washington in September were elected yesterday at a convention of Chicago Jews at the Auditorium hotel in an all day session yesterday.

The ballots were still being counted at 10 p. m.

Eleven of those nominated will be elected June 10.

The convention was one of many held in the city throughout the country.

The convention was elected president of the national convention, N. D. Karpis, Mrs. B. Davis, and J. Markus, vice presidents; L. H. Hoffman, secretary; A. E. Schwartz, financial secretary, and J. Rosenberg, treasurer.

The congress has been called to discuss Jewish problems, particularly as they have been affected by the war and may be affected by the terms of peace. The congress, it is expected, will be the first Jewish organization of similar scope the make-up of which has been determined on such broadly democratic lines.

I THANK THE PUBLIC

for its response to my full page announcement in last Monday's Tribune regarding Edwin Markham's great series of books,

"THE REAL AMERICA IN ROMANCE"

The response to that announcement has been rather sensational, in more ways than one. If you did not see it, please send for a copy. I want every American to read it.

Just as soon as possible, I am going to tell you the story of what this announcement really did in the way of arousing the nation to an opportunity. It is a big story. I must wait, however, until the publishers catch up with their present orders and inquiries.

The binders are working twenty-four hours a day now turning out books for you. I advise you to see the books today and to place your orders now for early delivery.

WANTED AT ONCE, A MODERN ARMY SYSTEM FOR U. S.

America Lacking Proper
Organization at Top
for Efficiency.

BY CAPT. HENRY J. REILLY,
THIRD ARMY.

Washington, D. C., May 20.—(Special.)—In the first two articles of this series it was shown that this war has caught us, as usual, unprepared.

The point was made that Mr. Root when secretary of war saw that the first step towards any efficient preparation for war was the creation of a general staff for the army; that as a consequence he worked for and succeeded in bringing into existence such a staff; but that his commission, primarily the independent staff corps and the politicians had succeeded in making it practically useless by reducing it to forty members, of whom but twenty could be in Washington at any one time.

The new bill just passed temporarily increases the number of general staff officers by ninety-two. The work which the general staff has on its hands in Washington at the present time demands the presence in Washington of at least 100 general staff officers. Even with this number some of the departments would be only directed by these officers.

Information System Weak.

One of the most important branches of the general staff should be the information division. When the war broke out this division had ceased to exist because of lack of officers. It has recently been reestablished with two officers. The British intelligence bureau in London, a corresponding organization, has 300 officers.

One of the most important works now going on is that of training the young men now in the various camps all over the country to be officers. This work should be directly under the control of the general staff. Due to the shortage of officers it has had to be put under the adjutant general department, which should be a purely administrative department, in no way connected with organization or training.

When all the troops now authorized are brought into existence we will have probably forty-four divisions, twelve regular, sixteen national guard, and sixteen national army units. These divisions will be organized into groups, each of two or three divisions, called army corps.

Need 900 Extra Officers.

Each one of these forty-four divisions and each of these fifteen or sixteen army corps should have three general staff officers. This makes an additional 150 to 200 of these officers needed. Thus we need, and need immediately, at least 900 general staff officers, and the law allows a total of 132.

For the same number of men we must have a much larger number of general staff officers than is the case in the continental European armies. This is true on account of two reasons. In these armies all the general staff work of war preparation is done during times of peace. When war arrives it has only to be put in execution. There being no more work of preparation to do the general staff as a whole leaves the capital and takes up the general staff work with the armies in the field.

As our work of preparation is only commencing, we need a general staff in Washington as well as one with the troops in the field. Even a well trained professional officer is not a good general staff officer until he has received at least one, or better, two years of special training in general staff work.

Therefore, even if we immediately appointed all these officers needed, they could not perform the same amount of work and as well as a smaller number of properly trained general staff officers.

Preparing for War.

As it was pointed out in the first article, to carry on a war four things are necessary: First, the determination of the policy to be pursued; second, the determination of the means to be employed to carry out this policy; third, the administration of the means, and fourth, the coordination of the whole.

The first is a function of the government. In the present case it has decided to raise and equip an army and send it to France.

The second should be a function of the general staff which should decide the best means of raising such an army, how it should be organized, trained, equipped, and sent to France. At present the general staff is not sufficiently

When painting your building the most important thing is to be sure of your paint. There is a lot of stuff put into cans and sold for paint that isn't worth anything. It's a mistake to buy it; a worse mistake to use it.

Your safe way is to go to some Devoe dealer and ask for Devoe Lead-and-Zinc Paint—that's all paint—pure lead, pure zinc, pure colors, pure linseed oil—and nothing else.

Costs less to put on because it will take less gallons; you'll save on both paint and labor.

MEMORIAL DAY

Gov. Lowden Calls for Special
Observance on Naming May 30 as Day Dedicated to Nation's Patriotic Dead.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 20.—A call for the special observance of Memorial day was set tonight by Gov. Lowden in his proclamation naming May 30 as the day dedicated to the memory of the nation's patriotic dead.

"The day will have a new significance this year," the proclamation said. "We are engaged in a war which challenges the principle for which the patriot dead fought. From Lexington to the battle of Santiago day liberty has been the watchword of America's fighting men. This is a war in which the supreme issue is the liberty of the world. Again we have been compelled to draw the sword in defense of human rights.

"If our enemies should prevail, our heroic dead will have died in vain. Our forefathers who fought with their blood our priceless heritage of liberty and their brave sons who have given their life in its defense upon a thousand battlefields have been mustered out on earth. But the principle for which they fought still lives."

large to do this. What is of more importance, it has not the power, as parts of all these functions are lodged by law in the hands of staff bureaus and departments which should have nothing to do with them.

In addition, the council of national defense, which should be a means of coordinating the army, navy, and industrial resources of the country through well meaning over-zealousness is already showing too much of a tendency to interfere in details that are and should be none of its business.

Staff Bureaus Too Strong.

The third, or administrative part of the program, should be in the hands of the staff bureaus and departments who have been told what the general staff wants should see to the filling of these wants faithfully and expeditiously. At present they are entirely too powerful, as they do not have to carry out the general staff policy if they do not want to and are allowed to determine many points which should be in the hands of the general staff.

The fourth, or coordination part of the program, both in the preparation work in Washington and the field work with the army, should be entirely in the hands of the general staff. At present such coordination as exists, and there is not any too much of it, rests entirely on the secretary of war.

No one man, no matter how hard he worked, possibly could insure the proper coordination under the present system, which tends to all the other work a secretary must perform.

Lack Proper Organization.

In other words, at the present time we lack the proper organization at the head of our army to insure the efficiency which must be had. The present system has broken down before and is going to break down again.

The greatest loyalty, self-sacrifice, and hard work on the part of the people working under it cannot prevent it. The only system which will work is one in which questions of policy, administration, and the necessary coordination are clearly outlined and the organization worked out accordingly.

MENOCAL TAKES SECOND OATH AS CUBA PRESIDENT

HAVANA, May 20.—The chief justice of the supreme court at noon today administered to Gen. Mario G. Menocal the oath of office for his second term as president of the Republic of Cuba in the presence of the cabinet ministers, the supreme court justices, members of the diplomatic corps, senators, congressmen, and representatives of the various organizations. Many Liberals were present, a complete spirit of cordiality was shown, and there was no untoward incident.

In a proclamation issued at the conclusion of the ceremonies the president, after referring to the almost complete suppression of the revolution, declared: "Cuba should dedicate all her energies to the defense of the ideals of democracy and international justice and liberty of the seas in which, as a commercial nation, she so greatly is interested."

LECTURES HERE TO AID 'GENTLE FOLK OF FRANCE'

Richard Fuller of Boston is in Chicago to deliver a series of lectures, the proceeds of which will go to aid "the gentle folk of France who have suffered in the war." Mr. Fuller already has raised $20,000 for this purpose.

He will deliver his first lecture this afternoon on "The Roman Forum and Cloaca," at the residence of Mrs. James B. Waller, 737 Lincoln parkway.

On Wednesday he will lecture at the residence of the Misses Skinner, 108 Rush street, on "Caesar"; on Thursday at Mrs. William Hubbard's, 1210 Astor street, on "England in the Great War"; on Friday at Mrs. Frances Farwell's, in Lake Forest, on "France in the Great War." He will repeat this lecture on Saturday at Mrs. Lyman's, 174 East Chestnut street, and on Sunday will repeat his lecture on England at Mrs. Robert Gregory's in Highland Park.

Every Drop of RED CROWN GASOLINE Vaporizes and Makes Power

Why? It's chain of boiling point fractions starts at 95 degrees Fahrenheit (the light and volatile end of the chain), the least bit of a spark from your ignition system being sufficient to burn it.

The chain is continuous, each fraction vaporizing at a different temperature up to above 400 degrees Fahrenheit (the heavy end of the chain).

When your engine is warm the temperature at the head of the cylinder is between 800 and 1000 degrees Fahrenheit. This is more than double the amount in heat necessary to burn even the heaviest end of this high-grade gasoline, vaporizing every drop.

There is not only no waste in the gasoline itself, but by its very nature it works in such a way as to make the most power.

Again It Is The Boiling Point Fractions

The fractions of Red Crown Gasoline are arranged so as to produce heat expansion during combustion, in direct ratio to the time required for the piston to perform a useful working stroke—a steady, driving pressure of the piston resulting in steady power—steam-engine-like power.

Red Crown Gasoline does not burn rapidly and impart a powerful push to the piston at commencement of the stroke, and then fall away equally quickly as the stroke progresses, which results in jerky power and a racked engine.

WINNER PLANS TO SHOOT DOWN SOARING PRICES

Mayor's Expert Says Chicago Should Have the Cheapest Food in U.S.

"I am convinced that the laboring men and women of Chicago should live cheaper and better than the working people of any other large city in the United States. This week we are starting a campaign which, I am confident, will bring this about before the summer is over," said John P. Garner, appointed by Mayor Thompson to study the "cost of living" problem. It is understood that means price fixers and speculators.

A great meeting is to be held next Thursday to devise ways and means. Mr. Garner has said:

"I have told me that enough produce can be raised within 20 miles of the city to feed the city; that much of the food was killed years ago, but fell to waste because stuff got so cheap it didn't pay."

A Garden Spot.
Chicago lies in the heart of the finest farm lands in the world. Wisconsin, always the foremost cabbage state of the nation, is prepared to plant four times the acreage it had last year. Plants have done well in the greenhouses and the weather is ideal for raising them.

"Wisconsin also exports annually $20,000,000 worth of dairy products. Close upon its heels come Illinois, Iowa, and Minnesota. Chicago is their central market. Wisconsin is also one of the great potato states in the union.

"Michigan, lying across the lake with deep water transportation, is a great grain spot, and its potato fields and cow pastures are famous. Southern Illinois is a magnificent producing section only equaled by two other districts in the United States. One of these is the country surrounding Rochester, N. Y., and the other comprises Maryland and Maryland.

"There's a lesson." "I got these facts from men who live in Chicago and stand in the midst of it. We are becoming convinced that there are men who try to keep the Chicago market high because Chicago is the great market place, the city's price."

"We have got to battle speculators. We are in their trap, and it is up to us to drive them out. I believe the best government is bringing up its guns right now."

SMILEY GLADD SAYS:

Vegetable Crops in Many Sections Are Promising. Maybe Prices Will Drop.

HOPE for lower prices in food-stuffs comes from various quarters. Information from a number of points is as follows:

HOUSTON, Tex.—Hans dropped 6 cents this week and are quoted at 10 cents.

FRESNO, Cal.—Dried fruits are lower here after rising steadily for a long time.

BOWLING GREEN, Ky.—Every indication points to a record breaking strawberry crop.

BOISE, Idaho.—The prospect for the fruit crop is unusually good.

VILLAGE RIDGE, Ill.—Strawberries have begun to move; the cucumber average is increased.

SACRAMENTO, Cal.—The Turlock district has tripled its acreage of beans.

DENVER, Colo.—Colorado will raise the biggest bean crop in its history.

ROCKY MOUNT, Tex.—Forty-four hundred carloads of potatoes were shipped out of Wharton, Eagle Lake, and Simonton last week.

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—Kentucky's tomato crop is 20 per cent better than indications at this time a year ago.

Florida reports potatoes, beans, tomatoes, watermelons, and cantaloupes all in better condition than a year ago.

CLUB WOMEN GOING TO EAT GARDEN WEEDS

The Chicago Woman's club has a garden at Eighteenth street and Jeffrey avenue. The vegetables have not yet appeared, but weeds are there in abundance, especially dandelions, wild lettuce, and dock. The clubwomen will eat the weeds. Mrs. J. C. Eley, president of the Housewives' league, was out at the garden yesterday demonstrating the edible values of weeds.

"Wild animals have always thrived on them, and they are as good for humans," Mrs. Eley said. "In Sweden country people eat greens as a regular diet. There will be enough weeds for use all summer."

A pack of dandelions and wild lettuce cut into inch and a half strips and served with green pepper and a little onion added to a French dressing makes a salad fit for a king, Mrs. Eley said.

And greens—a mixture of plantain, dandelion, and dock—or any of the weeds one may find—boiled for twenty minutes are delicious and nourishing. Two small slices of pork or a ham bone may be added as desired, she says.

LOVETT TO GIVE HIS ENTIRE TIME

Washington, D. C., May 20.—Robert S. Lovett, chairman of the board of the Union Pacific railroad, has volunteered "the whole of his time during the war to any work to which he might be assigned," by the American Red Cross.

RED CROSS DRIVE TO END MAY 28; 500,000 IS GOAL

1,500 Churches Appeal and Pledge 100,000 New Members.

The Red Cross membership campaign is to be brought to an end Monday night, May 28, according to an announcement made yesterday by Walter D. Moody, campaign director.

As a prelude to the drive to be made during the closing week, appeals for new members were made yesterday in 1,500 churches, which have pledged themselves to add 100,000 to the roll of those who are aiding the Red Cross work. Church committees will keep up their efforts during the week.

Officials in charge of the campaign are confident there will be a total of 100,000 members registered from Chicago before the campaign closes. Numerous fraternal, school, club, and women's organizations are taking part in the energetic work that is to mark the final week.

Chicagoans of Slovak birth are to meet tomorrow evening in Pilsen Park. Anton J. Gernak will be in charge and a number of pledges have already been received. Special meetings have been arranged in Oak Park, Evanston, and other suburbs.

Five thousand precinct committeemen will make a house to house canvass, under the direction of Charles A. Williams and James T. Igo, during the week. Special canvasses have been arranged in 800 business houses, each of which has more than 1,000 employees. All workers have been requested to send their reports to headquarters, 520 Monroe building.

During the day final rehearsals will begin for the tableaux vivant and patriotic pictures that are to be given in the Auditorium tomorrow evening. Details of the tableaux have been arranged under the direction of Grace Wilbur Trout.

HIDES OF SHARKS MAY BE USED FOR LEATHER SHOES

Washington, D. C., May 20.—(Special.)—Secretary of Commerce Redfield is making a determined search for suitable substitutes for leather. The bureau of standards, according to an announcement made tonight, is conducting experiments with the tanning of hides of shark, porpoise, graydon, and grouper, with a view to making them commercially available.

SENATE TAKES UP FOOD LAW TODAY

Washington, D. C., May 20.—The first administration food legislation to be taken up in the senate tomorrow provides for a federal survey of food supplies, measures to stimulate production, prevent hoarding and storage, licensing of food dealers, and conservation of breadstuffs by mixing flour.

Senator Gore, chairman of the senate agricultural committee, said tonight he would make every effort to expedite action, but that the question of authorizing a food administrator, liquor prohibition, and regulating foodstuff speculation on boards of trade would be raised and would make the date of final action problematical.

Senator Gore plans to offer an amendment to the survey measure to deal with organized speculation, authorizing the president to prescribe regulations to prevent gambling in food products.

Prohibition advocates also plan to make a vigorous fight for an amendment to prohibit grain or other foodstuffs from being manufactured into liquor during the war.

UNREST IN PARIS AS MEAT GOES UP

PARIS, May 20.—Meat prices jumped sharply here today, and the incoming supplies are diminished by half before the prospect of two meatless days a week, beginning tomorrow, according to government decrees.

This disorganization is only part of the economic crisis in France, and dissatisfaction with conditions is so keen that eleven deputies have announced their intention of interpellating the government on the subject when the parliamentary session is resumed Tuesday.

DUTCH HARVESTS FEED GERMANY?

ROTTERDAM, via London, May 20.—Great preparations are being made by thousands of German agents in Holland to export the greatest possible proportion of the Dutch vegetable and potato harvest. Cattle and horses will also be exported, and special vegetable trains are now running daily to Germany. Unless the United States stops the exportation of grain and fodder to Holland millions of tons of food will go to Germany this summer.

The Yellow Cab Has Made Cab-Riding Easy

It Established the Rate of 5c per $\frac{1}{4}$ Mile

The history of the YELLOW CAB shows a steady DECREASE in the cost to the public. There has been no fluctuation in rates EXCEPT DOWNWARDS. And that is the history of EVERY well-founded, right-minded enterprise.

The Yellow Cab Rates

Are Now as Low as any in the World

THE YELLOW CAB reached Chicago at a time when general cab rates were high, uncertain, unsatisfactory and disorganized. It's first act was to establish rates which were much lower than the rates the city ordinance specified. It was radical, surprising and intensely pleasing to the people.

And Every Cab Company in Chicago Had to Follow Suit

So that the YELLOW CAB is SOLELY responsible for the PRESENT low rates prevailing in Chicago. Its action made cab riding possible to thousands who couldn't afford it before. The YELLOW CAB not only benefited the public, but it made new business for all the cab companies in the city.

The new ordinance passed by the city council, establishing additional public cab stands in the city, enables us to give you a five minute cab service no matter where you live. We are putting on two hundred more YELLOW CABS which gives us the equivalent of 750 YELLOW CABS in constant service.

Consequently beyond a question, THE YELLOW CAB service is the greatest cab service in the entire world, not alone in the matter of rates but in the safe and comfortable conduct of the public from one point to another. Here are the new public stands as well as the old ones:

FASHION'S
BLUE BOOK

BY CORINNE LOWE.

NEW YORK—Special Correspondence. J. Newdays nobody would expect any poor little lonesome fabric to the hardship of appearing without another fabric. Nothing shows the conservative nature of the designer better than the silk suit of this season. Witness the above costume of brown tulle chaperoned at every point by warm brown velours.

This suit is a copy of one of Lanvin's, and like all the other products of this Paris designer, is as young and graceful as April. The skirt is perfectly plain and straight save for an amusing little apron banded with velours and a wide edge of the confederate material in the back. The little balls are, of course, of velours. But the first wish of this silk suit is that a good strong breeze may come up and tilt back the corners of that coat so as to show a lining of brilliant blue satin terminating in a band of figured blue commensurate with the velour band.

My oh, but it's English as a dropped "p"—that big, poppy hat of lorgnon worn with the suit. With its wide brim faced by brown cloth dotted taffeta and its simple how it looks as though it might have emerged from tea under the big umbrella in Hyde Park. And they're doing much of that sort of thing in hats today.

Practice in Economy.

WE had been friends, merely friends, for several months, but each time we met anywhere we seemed to enjoy one another's company more.

The one thing I had against him was his needless extravagance, and I brought up in a home where every penny saved was considered a penny earned, tried in various tactful ways to make him see the error of his ways. (You see, I knew what salary he earned.) All to no avail. Then war was declared and cries of "economy" and "your country's needs" echoed and reechoed throughout the land.

About a week later we were calling on friends on the south side. We were on the elevated train going to our destination when my friend leaned close to me and said, "Jane, guess how much money I started out with today?"

"O several blank checks for filling in numbers of three or four figures, I suppose," I said airily.

"No, just 20 cents."

"I gasped and, laughing at my astonishment, he continued: 'It's the only thing I can do in order to save money, and now that we are in a state of war I and my money may be needed. I have to do something, so I start out with just enough money for my actual needs. I then can't spend money for everything I see. Do command me, Jane. You don't know how hard it is.'"

"I'm proud of you," was my answer, "if you'll just keep it up when the war is over, I'll be more than proud of you."

"I can't without your help, but if you'll just promise to be my partner for always and help me save, we could strike a happy medium. Promise me, dear. I know I could make you happy."

I promised. G. B. S.

ANY more pictures like "The Barrier" will utterly unfit me for city life and work in an office. The call of the wild will even call me away from the city to the land where typewriters are not and the noise of elevated is supplanted by the swish of cold lake waters on pine grown shores.

I want to dress in khaki AND I want to catch a fish AND On pine grown shores I want to hear them cold lake waters swish.

Which above having greatly relieved my feelings if not yours, I am here to say that in my opinion "The Barrier" is a bear.

The novel by Rex Beach was one of the most popular books ever published. As a play—Theodore Roberts starred in it—it was a success, and now as a picture offering we have it re-blooded, teeming with interest, peopled with fascinating characters, redolent of the great outdoors.

They said to me, when I asked who was in the cast, "Nobody you ever heard of before"—which was discouraging. Usually the people you've never heard of before you never want to hear of again. Not always—usually. So I must confess it was with some misgivings that I went to see the picture. The surprise experienced was a pleasant one.

It is avowed that Rex Beach himself chose the characters. If this is true, one humbly suggests to producers that in the future the authors be allowed to do it. To my way of thinking, the cast is remarkable.

Mabel Jullienne Scott, the heroine, is brimful of charm and is a clever actress. Russell Simpson, her supposed father; Mitchell Lewis, as Polson Dorset, the Frenchman who loves her, and Victor Sutherland, as Lieut. Burrell, between whom and herself the supposed fact that she is a half-breed has raised a barrier, are all startlingly convincing in their roles. But, then, to tell the truth, there is no flaw to be found with any of the acting.

The picture, I predict, draw to the theater men with whom pictures are not a hobby, for it's a "film" after their own hearts. And the average woman will enjoy it for the love story that runs through it, for nothing else. I shall see it again, because I want to.

Tribune Cook Book

All recipes have been scientifically tested by Miss Edington, with current market materials and are intended by her.

BY JANE EDDINGTON.

Cooking Corn Meal.
WHY do not people in all walks of life eat more corn meal? It is the question they have been asking in Washington, and the papers all over the country have been taking up the subject editorially. And why don't they? Simply because they will not learn to cook it. Just think of buying meat at the grocery store, yet hundreds do it!

The old recipes have been discouraging. It was not agreeable to wrap one's hand in a towel, nor was it easy to get meat into boiling water without lumps. But now we know it is just as well to start with the water cold, stirring as it heats up and thickens. If the mush is then put into a fireless cooker over night it forms a more perfect jelly than the best mush ever bought.

The superintendent of documents, Washington, D. C., will send any one for 5 cents Farmers' Bulletin 565 on Corn Meal as a Food and Ways of Using It. This contains twenty-four pages and fifty-one recipes. Not all of these recipes are strictly up to date, while some of them are as historic and as representative as one could wish. There is a paragraph on "Combination of Corn Meal with More Highly Flavored Foods," and the recipes for tamales illustrate this use.

A recipe for the best scrapple I have ever tried was printed here in this column not long ago as illustrating the ways a by-product of tried out suet could be used. Corn meal, I believe, is quite universally liked, and I believe that we might work out new combinations of this nature. For the fireless cooker there is Indian pudding, which is delicious and nourishing. In bulletin 565 are recipes for ash cake, hake cake, corn dodger, crackling bread, Zue Indian bread, Boston brown bread, South Carolina corn bread, etc.

The Successful
Home Garden

This department will appear daily and Sunday in "Our Success" bulletin board and back yard garden to decrease the cost of living should be addressed to The Garden Editor.

J. F. H. HEIDE.

Bulletin.

BOW NOW—Green pod beans, wax beans, field beans, beets, Brussels sprouts, midseason cabbage, late cabbage, savor cabbage, red cabbage, cauliflower, early carrots, late carrots, midseason celery, celery, Swiss chard, early corn, summer endive, kitchen herbs, kohlrabi, leek, lettuce, midseason peas, radishes, rutabagas.

PLANT NOW—Early potatoes.

TRANSPLANT NOW (if four leaves or more)—Cabbage, savor cabbage, red cabbage, cauliflower, early celery, kohlrabi, lettuce.

The foregoing bulletin will hereafter be posted daily. The list will include such items as may still be included by belated gardeners, though the work might more properly have been done before. Whenever a vegetable first appears in the list, that is the best time for action.

PROTECT YOUR SEEDLINGS.

Those who started tomatoes, peppers, eggplants, and perhaps okra, in hotbeds and window boxes as advised since March 9, are impatient to transplant their seedlings. If this has already been done, protection must be given the plants, whenever the temperature threatens to fall below 45 degrees F. The daily weather predictions of the United States weather bureau are found on the front pages of our newspapers.

There is less likelihood of injurious cold during cloudy, rainless or windy nights than in clear, calm weather.

The plants may be protected by inverting a paper bag, or cone, or an empty can, or flower pot over each. If paper is used, it may be fastened down on the ground by means of wooden splints.

If the seedlings have not yet been transplanted to the open, it is advisable, as suggested last Friday, to grasp the opportunity at the first rising temperature. The head gardener of the West Chicago parks protests against our mention of rising temperature, as he has found it an infallible sign of cold.

Before transplanting the foregoing ground must be again forked or harrowed, as provided for tomatoes. Peppers and okra are planted about four inches apart in the row for garden culture and eighteen inches for field culture. The distance between rows should be fourteen inches in garden based on the plan of March 14, and forty-two inches in field culture, based on the plan of March 15. The insertion of plants be like that of cabbage, not like tomato.

Egg plants are spaced twenty inches apart in the row for garden culture and twenty-four inches for field culture. The distance between rows and insertion of seedlings are like those of peppers and okra.

The application of a tumblerful of water to each seedling must not be omitted.

Any of the foregoing may be interplanted with seedlings of lettuce or kohlrabi, or radishes may be sown. On the four foot bed separate rows are made for them, while in the long row method they are planted singly between plants in the row.

Indian Names for Country Homes.

"A" Indian names, near us—have the place to name in, in Cherokee, "Upland Fields." This is suggestive of the whole locality. I have built in an open field (no natural growth) and planted silver leaf magnolia and Lombardy poplar. The ground in front of our house is an open English lawn. All the grounds were laid out by a landscape designer. I want an Indian name that will suit the place and will be able to give me. I am familiar with few Indian names.

Belleville (Beautiful Home), Broad-lawn, and Outlook are appropriate names for the scene you describe in your letter. Make your selection and write for its Indian equivalent to the bureau of Indian Affairs, department of ethnology, Washington, D. C. You will receive a courteous reply. A friend who called her country home Hillcrest applied to this bureau, giving the locality so the tribe of Indians formerly inhabiting the region might be identified, and had an answer embodying the pretty name Kanemata, which the cottage has borne ever since. We wish that you may be as successful.

Seeking Missing Brother.

"Will you please help me to find Frank Jindra or Frank Schram? He is 6 feet tall, has black hair and eyes and is about 27 years old. He left Baltimore nine years ago to go to Chicago. His sister would be happy to hear from him. "Mrs. F. E. C."

The address of the anxious sister is in our books. Readers who can offer to her a reasonable hope of finding the wanderer are invited to apply to us for it. It would be a truly charitable deed.

CLUB NOTES

The annual meeting of the Republican Women's Association of Illinois will be held at the Chicago Women's club today at 2 p. m. Bright Sayings of the Children

"The Tribune" will pay $1 for each child's saying printed. The only condition is the story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. Write to the editor of the paper only. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unsolicited contributions. Address bright sayings to Amy Bee, "The Tribune," Chicago.

My sister came to make us a visit and Peter, a neighbor's small boy, was an interested spectator when her trunk was being unpacked. Finally he asked her if she had brought any candy with her and upon receiving a negative answer inquired if she had any gum. This also producing no results he said: "Didn't you think there was going to be any white boys in this town?" C. J. McD.

One youngster in school had delivered a severe kick in the stomach to another lad. When asked to talk as to why he had struck his playmate there, he said: "I didn't mean to hit him there, but he turned around just in time." F. L.

Marjorie had been naughty and I was correcting her. When I finished scolding her she looked up and said: "Mother, what in the world is the matter with you? Are you tired of being mother?" Mrs. W. F.

The first warm day we had this spring I met my neighbor's boy, a child of 7, and he said: "Hello! O, I'm so hot, and I got my coldest coat on, too." F. B.

How's This?
Corns Lift Out
With Fingers—No Pain!

Thanks to a new discovery made from a Japanese product your foot troubles can be quickly ended. Corns, blisters, calluses, etc., can be lifted out with the fingers. It's wonderful. Think of it: only a touch or two of the ointment and real foot-joy is yours.

There is not one bit of pain or soreness when applying it on or afterwards and it doesn't irritate the skin.

If your feet are inclined to swell or if you have cracked or bleeding toes, it will draw the inflammation right out and quickly heal the sore and tender places. It is the real Japanese secret of fine, healthy little feet and is greatly appreciated by women who wear high shoes. It will draw the inflammation right out and quickly heal the sore and tender places. It is the real Japanese secret of fine, healthy little feet and is greatly appreciated by women who wear high shoes.

Stand on their feet all day. Try it. Just ask in any drug store for a few cents worth of ointment and learn for yourself what solid foot comfort really is. There is nothing like it—Advertisement.

BAU ON BUYING CAUSES SLUMP IN WHEAT PRICE

Plans Made for Better Distribution—Tone of Coarse Grains Strong.

The placing of limitations on the buying of wheat futures for July and September delivery, together with the establishing of maximum prices at $2.75 for July and $2.45 for September, took the support away from future and precipitated a tremendous fall in values. From the extreme low points of the week there were substantial recoveries when shorts tried to cover, but not sufficient for the week were 30c for the July and 20c for the September.

Trade in wheat has dwindled to small proportions under the present regulations. As long as wheat is liquidated the open interest becomes that much smaller, while new buying is not permitted even against export business or milling sales.

Price Control Is Likely.

How long the present situation will last is problematical, but it is probable that prices will be kept under control to some extent for a long time to prevent undue inflation as the result of rampant speculation.

From Washington reports it appears evident that the allies, federal government officials, and representatives of the grain exchange, from this time forward will work in close cooperation. In this way the needs of the allies and the supplies apportioned to the neutral countries will be provided for without competitive buying, while the needs of this country will be given first consideration. The option prevails among grain men that supplies will be ample if proper distribution is made imperative.

Seedling Reports Favorable.

Seedling reports from the northwest do not indicate much increase over the acreage of last year in spring wheat, and in some sections the crop is a little late. However, the general prospects are good. The soil conditions are satisfactory and it is believed the crop has a fair start. In Canada a large percentage of the wheat acreage is in and there will be a big acreage, Saskatchewan, however, showing a small decrease compared to last year.

Winter wheat has shown improvement in some sections. The recent weather conditions have been favorable; harvest is expected to begin in the extreme southwest the first week in June. Cattle wheat prices dropped a little during the slump in futures, but improved, and premiums are still at tremendous advances over the July figures. Foreign buying has been limited. About all the exportable surplus has been placed already.

It is expected the allies will make private settlements on part of their future holdings, which are said to be smaller than popularly supposed.

Corn Harvest Is Overlooked.

The corn market was about as higher for the week. Trade in May was discontinued with the settling price at $1.45. Following the break in wheat values, reflecting the excellent crop, the cash market shows no weakness and country offerings are light, while stocks are small. Primary receipts show some increase, but not rapid recovery. Weather conditions have been unusually favorable for corn planting, which has made rapid progress throughout the belt, reports indicating a big increase in acreage in most states. Foreign demand continues good, with discouraging reports from Argentina confirmed.

Oats Rally on Export Sales.

Oats gained in strength the last few days, reflecting the excellent crop. Export sales for the week were placed between 2,000,000 and 4,000,000 bu. Local sales also were good, and until the last day or so country offerings were small while primary receipts showed a considerable lack of trade, even when prices had been forced down to any extent. The cash trade is moderate.
